

TERMS OF USE

The following terms and conditions governs the usage of services of softwarejoint.com and its products or any other intellectual property or web services owned by softwarejoint.com.

Description of Services

Software Joint may provide you with various resources, materials, software, downloads, information collectively called as services. These services can be enhanced in the future subject to new terms and conditions.

Privacy statement

Software Joint has a set of privacy rules and regulations that can be found here. These policies state how Software Joint collects data of visitors visiting the website and how Software Joint uses this data.

Communication with our services

We, at Software Joint invite you to suggest improvement in our products and services. You can do the same by sending us the suggestions in the form of information or material of content (here referred to as “content”). You also give us the right to use, reproduce, modify, publish, translate, distribute and display this content worldwide or incorporate it into our work, media or technology that already exists or may be developed later.

Use of Software

If any content, material, software is used by you through this website or being provided to you (now called simply as “Software”), is the copyright of Software Joint. You may be required to register with Software Joint to download or use this software. In addition, you can only use this software under the terms and conditions of the license user agreement included with the software. You cannot use or reproduce a software against the terms and conditions of the license agreement.

Disclaimer of Warranty and Liability

Use of services of Software Joint is at your own risk. Software Joint or its associates are not responsible for the consequences of reliance on any information submitted to the services. Any risk of injury rests on the user. Software is provided without warranty and liability. Software Joint is not liable for any direct or indirect, incidental, consequential or punitive damage for the use of or access to the software.

Contact Information

Software Joint welcomes you to send across any comments regarding the terms and conditions. You can contact us through e-mail or postal mail.